Dear Hiring Manager:

My name is Nazariy Dumanskyy, and I would like to apply for a summer internship position at Apple.

I myself am currently a student at the University of Michigan - Dearborn and will receive my Bachelors for Computer Science in Spring of 2017. In addition to school, I have also been working with a Startup as a software developer for about 2 years, which has been a great experience. Here is my story:

Given the opportunity at the startup brought an extreme amount of joy to my life. Back then, we were working on Trendala, a fashion shopping app. Right away I got involved with the backend infrastructure. It was difficult at first because I didn't know Python or Django. However, amazing people like Steve or Robert, constantly tried to help me in any way possible, and I was very motivated to learn. I believed in the idea and knew that with the people around me, we can achieve great success. We coded for hours, debugged for hours, and argued for hours about improving the user experience, all with this drive to create a revolutionary product that will make our lives and everyone else's lives easier. I still remember how we went to malls and universities to gain feedback and to get people to download the app. Since then, the company has pivoted to another idea. However, looking back, what an unbelievable experience it was. The friendships made, all the things learned, the excitement are all things to be greatly thankful for.

At the startup, I worked on the backend infrastructure of the applications, the fronted building dynamic websites, and in addition I have also been involved in data engineering, which I really fell in love with. We have actually created a recommendation engine and even a natural language cleanser for one of our platforms.

With that, it is what I want to bring to the table at Apple. I am very eager to learn and collaborate with like-minded people to create amazing things. Being an Apple fan, I am stunned by the user experience and the quality of products that Apple provides. Thus, working at Apple, I know that with a team we can do anything with the same standard of quality and experience.

Looking forward to speaking with you. You can reach me at my email or phone number.

Sincerely yours,

Nazariy Dumanskyy
